Case No. 4:18-cv-00824-O

Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, et al.,

Defendants.

DECLARATION OF JONATHAN F. MITCHELL

- 1. My name is Jonathan F. Mitchell. I am over the age of 18 and fully competent in all respects to make this declaration.
- 2. I have personal knowledge of the facts stated in this declaration, and all of these facts are true and correct.
- 3. I represent the plaintiffs in this litigation, and I submit this declaration in support of the plaintiffs' application for costs and attorneys' fees under 42 U.S.C. § 1988(b) (Docket Entry No. 153).
- 4. My résumé is attached as Exhibit A to this declaration. I declare under penalty of perjury that everything that that appears in my résumé is truthful and accurate.
- 5. I have argued five cases before the Supreme Court of the United States, all of which are listed on my résumé. Those cases are, in reverse chronological order:

United States v. Texas, No. 21-588 (Nov. 1, 2021)
Campbell–Ewald Co. v. Gomez, No. 14-857 (Oct. 14, 2015)

Gonzalez v. Thaler, No. 10-895 (Nov. 2, 2011)

- 6. I was recently retained to argue Garland v. Cargill, No. 22-976, before the Supreme Court next year, which will mark my sixth Supreme Court oral argument.
- 7. I have written and signed briefs on the merits in eight Supreme Court cases that have proceeded to oral argument. Those cases are, in reverse chronological order:

United States v. Texas, No. 21-588
Whole Woman's Health v. Jackson, No. 21-463
Campbell–Ewald Co. v. Gomez, No. 14-857
Walker v. Texas Division, Sons of Confederate Generals, No. 14-144
Texas Dep't of Housing and Community Affairs v. ICP, No. 13-1371
Utility Air Regulatory Group v. EPA, No. 12-1146
EPA v. EME Homer City Generation, No. 12-1182
Gonzalez v. Thaler, No. 10-8950

- 8. I have argued more than 30 cases in the federal courts of appeals. I have also argued before Supreme Court of Texas and in numerous trial courts.
- 9. I have written and submitted more than 30 amicus curiae briefs in the Supreme Court of the United States.
- 10. Allyson Ho, a partner at Gibson Dunn's Dallas office, has informed me that her hourly rate is $1,750.00, and that she provided a $1,313 hourly rate to the Attorney General of Texas at a 25% discount over the matter reported in Robert T. Garnett, High-dollar lawyers aim to prove Texas in 'substantial compliance' to serve foster kids, Dallas Morning News (June 14, 2023). I have attached an authentic copy of Mr. Garnett's article as Exhibit E to this declaration, which I obtained from the Dallas Morning News's website on December 8, 2023. I have also attached as Exhibit F an authentic copy of Robert T. Garnett, Texas hires well-connected private lawyers, may stiffen defense in foster-care lawsuit, Dallas Morning News (May 11, 2023), which reports that "Allyson Ho argued multiple cases at the U.S. Supreme Court." I obtained this article from the Dallas Morning News's website on December 8, 2023.
 - 11. The hourly rate that I charge to my full-paying clients is $1,200.

- 12. The hours that I spent working on this matter appear on a spreadsheet that is attached as Exhibit B to this declaration. I declare under penalty of perjury that every billing entry that appears in that spreadsheet is truthful and accurate. The specific times that appear in the timesheet are for the pacific time zone.
- 13. I spent 386.9 hours on this case from July 6, 2018, through December 4, 2023, but I have decided to write off 20.0 hours that were spent on non-legal tasks (such as reviewing and editing press releases for America First Legal Foundation) or communications with potential clients who ultimately decided not to join the lawsuit.
- 14. I have also decided to seek recovery for my travel time at 50% of my reasonable hourly rate.
- 15. My law firm employs second- and third-year law students to help with citechecking and discrete research tasks. I pay them $100/hour, although I sometimes pay a lower rate of $50/hour if the case is pro bono or on contingency.
- 16. Several of my student research assistants worked on this case. In July of 2021, a rising 2L at Georgetown University Law Center worked 2.8 hours citechecking and proofreading my summary-judgment and class-certification briefing. I paid her $50/hour for that work. In September of 2022, on University of Chicago 1L spent 0.5 hours proofreading my Fifth Circuit reply brief. I paid him $100/hour for that work. Finally, in December of 2023 two of my student RAs spent 11.9 hours researching cases for our fee application. One of them was a Harvard 2L who worked for 5.0 hours; the other was a University of Chicago 2L who logged 6.9 hours.
- 17. The 30.3 billable hours that I spent drafting and preparing our fee application are also necessary and reasonable. I conducted my research into the appropriate hourly rate and the appropriate amounts of billable time as efficiently as possible, and I gathered and read the relevant cases from the Fifth Circuit and Texasbased district courts with speed and dispatch. I outsourced as many research tasks as possible to my student RAs, which significantly reduced the total hours that I would have otherwise expended. I drafted the fee application and supporting exhibits quickly and without unnecessary or undue delay.

- 18. The hours that I spent working on the fee application appear on a spreadsheet that is attached as Exhibit C to this declaration. I declare under penalty of perjury that every billing entry that appears in that spreadsheet is truthful and accurate. The specific times that appear in the timesheet are for the pacific time zone.
- 19. It was necessary and reasonable to draft and prepare the fee application myself, rather than delegate to the task to local counsel, because I had done nearly all of the legal work and knew exactly why I had performed the relevant tasks and why they were reasonable and necessary. I would have had to invest a significant number of hours on the fee application regardless of whether local counsel assisted, and I am certain that involving local counsel would have driven up the total number of hours spent on this task and would likely have resulted in a higher amount of requested fees.
- 20. I incurred each of the following court costs and travel expenses in litigating this case:

$400.00 filing fee for the complaint $505.00 filing fee for the notice of appeal $81.00 for the court reporter's invoice $835.93 for printing paper copies of the Fifth Circuit briefs $1,021.67 in travel costs for the hearing of April 9, 2019 $806.96 in travel costs for the hearing of August 27, 2021 $1,148.68 in travel costs for the Fifth Circuit argument.

Authentic copies of the receipts are attached as Exhibit D to this declaration. The total amount of costs and expenses in $4,799.24.

This concludes my sworn statement. I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

Dated: December 12, 2023

requiring extra services or quantities other than the standard or minimum order.

Overtime charges will be made when, in our estimation, we are not allowed sufficient time to complete your brief during our regular working hours. The charge for overtime is $50 per hour per person, in addition to the regular brief charge. Sundays and holidays - $75 per hour.

A charge of $50 per hour will be made for any alterations, repaging or extra work required by the customer.

An extra charge per page will be made for such things as difficult-to-read copy, copy in longhand, etc.

Pages "killed" (set up but discarded) by attorneys will be charged at $13 per page.

Footnotes are charged at 90¢ per line (extra). Tabular matter, or copy that might require greater time, effort or skill than needed for the average law brief, will be charged at $50 per hour (extra).

Reproduced exhibits are $31.90 per page. Larger exhibits that must be reproduced and folded in are $34.90 per page.

For a brief of over 70 pages, perfect binding (hot glue) will be required at an additional cost.

When an extra set of proofs is required, there will be an additional charge, depending on brief length.

Extra copies of the printed brief are charged at 10¢ per page, per copy up to 150 extra copies and 7¢ thereafter.

Normally, if needed, we can send proofs (up to 35 pages) the same day, when your copy arrives in our office by 10:00 a.m. Central Time, with no overtime. Advance scheduling will save on possible additional costs.

We require a down payment of the estimated cost. Pro se cases require full payment in advance of printing.

We print law briefs for you, the attorney. Therefore, you are responsible for payment. We do not extend terms of credit to your client.

The attorney has the responsibility for determining and meeting their brief's filing deadline.

*United States Supreme Court Briefs - $21.90 per page - 50 copies. Cover and index pages are charged as two pages each.

Reproduced briefs or appendices are done at $9.50 per page for 50 copies.

* $2.00 savings per page (excluding cover and index which are charged as 2 pages each) when copy is sent in Word or WordPerfect format.

High-dollar lawyers aim to prove Texas in

'substantial compliance' to serve foster kids

AUSTIN — Texas is paying a Dallas lawyer more than $1,300 an hour to aggressively try to extricate the state from a costly, embarrassing lawsuit over how it treats foster children.

And the attorney, Allyson N. Ho, appears to be swinging for the fences to prove that the state has achieved "substantial compliance" in improvements to serve those kids.

In a filing late Tuesday, Ho announced she and her colleagues from the international law firm Gibson Dunn & Crutcher may call as many as 14 state protective-services and child-care regulatory officials as witnesses at a hearing this month.

Ho intends to show then that enough progress has been made to meet U.S. District Judge Janis Graham Jack's remedial orders, she wrote.

"Defendants intend to call these witnesses to assist with demonstrating Defendants' substantial compliance with the Remedial Orders and carrying out their responsibility of safeguarding the children in their care," she said.

Ho could not be reached for comment.

Spokesmen for Gov. Greg Abbott did not respond to a request for comment on why he's hired outside lawyers and whether he wants more robust challenges to Jack's handling of the case.

Lead plaintiffs' lawyer Paul Yetter said Wednesday that he finds the state's new posture discouraging.

"It's gone back to fighting and not fixing," Yetter said in a written statement.

The class-action suit was filed in March 2011 by New York-based Children's Rights, a nonprofit advocacy group, which recruited law firms Yetter Coleman of Houston and Haynes and Boone of Dallas as in-state, pro bono counsel.

In late 2015, Jack found that Texas runs an unsafe long-term foster care system. Children abused or neglected by their birth families emerge from it in worse shape than when they entered, Jack said.

In early April, Abbott's office hired Gibson Dunn. The three-term Republican governor ended the practice of having separate sets of lawyers in Attorney General Ken Paxton's office represent himself, the Department of Family and Protective Services, and the Health and Human Services Commission.

In Abbott's original April 6 contract with Gibson Dunn, which appeared to be signed by his chief of staff Gardner Pate, the parties set a $1 million cap on attorney fees and costs through Aug. 31. But on May 22, Abbott's office said in a revised contract that it "continues to require the assistance of outside legal counsel," according to copies of the contracts and related correspondence The Dallas Morning News obtained through the state's open-records law.

The cap is apparently lifted because on Friday, Abbott signed a "supplemental" or emergency spending bill that gives his office $6 million to pay lawyers to represent the state in the foster-care suit.

'Texas no longer is trying'

Yetter, the plaintiffs' lawyer, added the two figures together and said the governor has a $7 million legal war chest. It's not clear whether Abbott has authority to spend more than $6 million.

"It's a sad day for children when the state decides to spend $7 million on new lawyers instead of safe homes, improved training and better care," Yetter said. "Fixing a broken system is not easy. This looks like the state of Texas no longer is trying."

In recent "motions for clarification," Ho, who is co-chair of Gibson Dunn's appellate and constitutional law practice group, questioned what she described as the judge's imprecise instructions on how the state should challenge her monitors' invoices to the state.

In nearly 3½ years of court monitoring, Deborah Fowler of Austin-based Texas Appleseed, Kevin Ryan of New Jersey-based Public Catalyst and their staff members have rung up about $46 million in billings, according to the protective-services department.

Ho said she had questions about, though she wasn't necessarily challenging, what appears to be a $79,027 bill for the time of 41 people on the monitors' staffs to virtually attend Jack's April 12 status conference in the case.

The costs to state taxpayers of the monitors and plaintiffs' lawyers, who've been awarded millions in fees, have been exorbitant, House Human Services Committee Chairman James Frank, R-Wichita Falls, has said. Ho also has repeated the objections made by Paxton aides on April 12 that Jack's monitors exceeded their authority by trying to oversee children's use of psychotropic drugs, which aren't specifically mentioned in approved remedial orders. Jack overruled the objections.

In filings and emails, Yetter, Fowler and Ryan have told Ho and her Gibson Dunn team that orders requiring Texas to shield children from shoddy providers and investigate medical neglect of children give Jack discretion to ride herd on overuse of mental health drugs.

In a recent 13-month period, monitors visiting 14 congregate-care facilities reviewed files for 161 children. Of them, 75 were on four or more psychotropic medications. Only one of the 75 had a current version of a utilization review for such powerful drugs. The state imposed the review requirement on itself, given past abuses chronicled by former Comptroller Carole Keeton Strayhorn.

'No substitute for an order'

In a June 5 filing, Ho referred to communications she'd received from the monitors.

"Those emails are no substitute for an order" on her requests that Jack clarify invoice-challenge procedures and whether the judge has authority to challenge individual doctors' decisions on prescription drugs, Ho wrote.

Jack scheduled a June 27 hearing, at which she may again hold the state in contempt of court.

In late 2019, Jack slapped fines on Texas of $50,000 a day, mostly for not ensuring there were nighttime watches of kids in all group settings. She suspended the fines after three days. Since then, Jack has threatened — but not actually levied — fines on two other occasions.

In March through May, Texas' foster care system had more than 200 children housed in hotels and other makeshift settings, such as churches, for at least two consecutive nights per month. That was the first time the monthly "children without placements" number topped 200 since October. In the summer of 2021, the census topped 400.

Last month, 75% of the children lacking placements were 14 to 17 years old, with 88% having experienced psychiatric hospitalizations, according to department data. Having to tend the children 24/7 on overtime shifts has fueled high turnover among Child Protective Services caseworkers.

At the upcoming hearing, lawyers for the 9,000 children in long-term foster care want the judge to force the state to prove it's in compliance with reform orders, Yetter said.

"We'll focus on three areas: overworked caseworkers, medical neglect as to powerful psychotropic meds, and children not knowing how to report abuse."

On Tuesday, Ho did something state lawyers have not done before periodic hearings.

She submitted a witness list. In addition to the 14 bureaucrats, Ho said "defendants reserve the right to call additional witnesses if needed to show substantial compliance with the Remedial Orders."

Whether the move is aimed at fending off a contempt order or building a record for a more frontal challenge to Jack is unclear.

On Wednesday, Ho did not respond to questions about whether she plans later in the summer to ask the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, on which her husband James Ho sits, to overturn any of Jack's recent rulings or release Texas from the case.

Under Jack's remedial orders, she would retain jurisdiction in the case for three years after her monitors said Texas has fully complied.

Whether that can be accelerated hinges on improvements or the state's defense strategy — and, perhaps, the 5th Circuit.

The Gibson Dunn team's ample connections to the New Orleans-based court have drawn notice. Four of the five Gibson Dunn lawyers mentioned in contracts with Abbott's office, including Ho and of counsel Prerak Shah of Houston, have clerked for current 5th Circuit judges.

Abbott is paying Ho $1,313 an hour; and Shah, a former acting U.S. attorney for the Northern District of Texas, $1,069 an hour.

In the original contract, Abbott's office agreed to pay two Dallas-based associates in the Gibson Dunn firm $945 and $859 an hour, respectively.

On May 22, the contract's hourly rate sheet was amended to note that Dallas-based associate Savannah Silver would be paid $754 an hour, with "other unspecified associates" receiving sums "not to exceed $859/hr."

Update:

Updated at 2:18 p.m. to include plaintiffs' lawyers' reaction.

AUSTIN — Texas Attorney General Ken Paxton has hired experienced and well-connected private lawyers to represent the state in a federal class-action suit over foster care.

They include Allyson N. Ho, the wife of a federal appellate judge on the court who may hear additional appeals, and two other lawyers with the multinational law firm Gibson Dunn who — like Ho — have clerked for other sitting judges on that court.

Together with recent moves by aides to Paxton challenging activities of judge-appointed monitors, Texas' switch of lawyers may signal a new, more aggressive defense strategy.

In a court filing Thursday, Ho and Prerak Shah announced their appearances in the long-running suit that accuses the state's long-term foster care of being unsafe and harmful to children.

Ho "has been assigned to appear as Attorney-in-Charge in this case on behalf of all Defendants," the notice read.

Ho, of Dallas, is co-chair of the 1,800-lawyer firm's nationwide appellate and constitutional law practice group. She has presented more than 90 oral arguments in state and federal courts, many in high-dollar business disputes.

She is married to James Ho, a judge on the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, and once clerked for another judge who sits on the New Orleans-based appellate court, Jacques Wiener Jr..

Shah, of Houston, is of counsel to Gibson Dunn. Shah is a former acting U.S. attorney for the Northern District of Texas. Previously, he was chief of staff to U.S. Sen. Ted Cruz. Shah, who clerked for 5th Circuit Judge Jerry Smith, sits on Cruz and Sen. John Cornyn's Federal Judicial Evaluation Committee. It advises the senators on federal judge and U.S. attorney appointments in Texas.

Also entering the case is the firm's Dallas-based litigation associate Savannah Silver. Silver clerked for 5th Circuit Judge Jennifer Walker Elrod.

The state's move to hire some of the most highly regarded appellate attorneys in the country may suggest that it will appeal District Judge Janis Graham Jack's decisions back to the 5th Circuit, with the aim of narrowing remedies and seeking an end to the case.

In the 12-year-old suit, state-employed lawyers from the attorney general's office have represented the three defendants — the governor, protective services department and Health and Human Services Commission.

Ho and Shah are the first outside lawyers Texas has retained.

In April 2021, Gov. Greg Abbott and the two state agencies had to obtain separate lawyers from Paxton's office because of a "perceived conflict," according to the new attorneys' notice. The protective services department once operated child placing agencies in several regions, which the commission filed enforcement actions against, the notice said. However, the need for separate lawyers has ended because the department gave up its licenses, it said.

On Thursday, the two defendant agencies issued a joint statement saying Paxton's office hired Gibson Dunn "to ensure that the State's interests are best represented in the lawsuit."

It noted that Kimberly Gdula, deputy chief of Paxton's General Litigation Division, who once represented state agencies in the case, is returning "as counsel" and will coordinate the state lawyers' work under Ho's supervision.

"The agencies look forward to working with the new litigation team," department and commission officials said.

Paxton's media affairs office did not immediately respond to an email inquiring how much the three Gibson Dunn lawyers will be paid.

New York-based nonprofit groups Children's Rights and A Better Childhood brought the suit, with help from two Texas firms working in the case for free, Yetter Coleman of Houston and Haynes and Boone of Dallas.

Paul Yetter, the lead plaintiffs' lawyer at a bench trial in the case, said that although Ho and Shah are "excellent lawyers," he wishes the state instead would spend money on foster care improvements. The state's fastest exit from the case is to ensure children's safety, he said.

"Lawyering up won't fix this broken system," Yetter said in an email. "The State needs more caseworkers and more safe homes, not more litigators."

Marcia Robinson Lowry, who founded Children's Rights and now heads A Better Childhood, said state leaders should be focusing on "the serious and continuing problems that continue to be identified by the monitors," not legal strategy.

"I have not seen this extraordinary level of resistance in any of the other cases I have worked on," she said in an email. Lowry said she's been involved in "at least 20."

In recent decades, Children's Rights has sued dozens of states and counties, alleging that they run foster care systems that unconstitutionally expose children to undue risk of harm.

Texas resisted the class-action lawsuit more vigorously than others, but it wasn't able to beat it back.

Nearly 2½ years ago, Abbott ordered the Department of Family and Protective Services and the Health and Human Services Commission to "fully comply" with Jack's orders.

Tension-filled hearings in the past two months, though, signaled to many providers and others who have closely followed the case that Texas may be preparing to ask the 5th Circuit to rein in Jack, an appointee of former President Bill Clinton.

Last week, Assistant Attorney General Reynolds Brissenden, who represents the commission, said Jack's two monitors' combined request for payment of $1.7 million for their work in March was more than usual, raising concerns.

At an April 12 hearing in Corpus Christi, Brissenden and another lawyer in Paxton's office who represents the protective services department lodged objections that monitors were inappropriately reviewing the psychotropic drugs being given to a sample of the 9,000 children in long-term foster care.

"There is no remedial order that specifically addresses the use of psychotropic medications," Brissenden said.

Jack shot back, "This is a safety issue for the children. You're putting them in unsafe placements where they're being thrown eight, nine psychotropic drugs at a time without proper supervision."

Allyson Ho argued multiple cases at the U.S. Supreme Court, according to a January 2021 article in the legal publication Texas Lawbook.

She also once played the harp for the justices when she clerked for the late Justice Sandra Day O'Connor and helped Justice Amy Barrett through the confirmation process.

At Gibson Dunn, she took the position vacated by James Ho after former President Donald Trump nominated him for an opening on the 5th Circuit in 2017.

Asked about James and Allyson Ho's similar careers as Texas appellate lawyers, and whether that has caused ethical conflicts, Allyson Ho responded, "No impact as a substantive matter," Texas Lawbook reported.

James Ho ticked off other legal power couples. He said "obviously" he would recuse himself from any case involving his wife and Gibson Dunn.
